A Word from Jussi Tähtinen, CEO

Expanding the portfolio to build more revenue streams

The focus of H1 / 2018 was in building more revenue streams by expanding our portfolio. This is in line with our strategy, that consists of two key operations: 1) Self-publishing a portfolio of mobile games, based on our own IPs and 2) Offering our development services to leading companies in the industry as part of our service business model. As a result of these activities, we now have several products in our portfolio, that are potential new revenue streams moving forward to 2nd half of this year and beyond.

In our self-publishing business, the highlight was announcing our new game Heroes of Warland. This is the 2nd game in our new portfolio focusing on competitive multiplayer. With Heroes of Warland we're making a big leap from 1vs1 games to team vs team multiplayer. This type of game opens a world of new opportunities for growth, by for example enabling us to have new approaches to marketing. To support the upcoming launch we've teamed up with Gamingzone to develop a reality TV format called Heroes & Superstars, where nine successful gaming superstars from different games and three sports champions will battle out in HoW against each other. We completed a directed issue of approx 1,37 M EUR in June to support the launch of this game. Heroes of Warland public soft launch started in July with technical testing. We are very excited developing this game launch further and continuing to explore new opportunities for growth.

The 1st game in our new portfolio, Medals of War, progressed on several fronts. Overall, we continued with solid progress on performance metrics during 2nd quarter on a monthly basis. We scaled down the spending on user acquisition, while the focus was in improving the performance of the game and preparing the MEA version launch. This resulted in decreased revenue during this quarter. After March we succeeded in almost doubling the ARPDAU and more importantly, increasing ARPU significantly. This is due to the big economy update that we launched in March combined with continuous efforts on user acquisition, where the goal is to find scalability with sustainable ROAS (Return On Advertising Spend). After H1 the progress has continued, and we've now reached a point where the game overall is returning more revenue than what goes into user acquisition. The next step is for us to deliver more updates to the game and optimize the marketing and user acquisition to find ways to scale up the game while maintaining sustainable ROAS. These are also valuable learnings and moving forward we can apply these to other games in our portfolio.

Another big focus point was expanding Medals of War to MEA region with Netmarble EMEA. The launch happened after the interim period in July, but naturally a lot of the work for that was done during 2nd quarter. Our plan is to develop the western version together with the MEA version and bring best practices from one version to another. Netmarble EMEA acts as the publisher in MEA region and Netmarble has the first right of refusal for Asia. I'm excited to see how things progress with Medals of War moving forward to second half of the year.

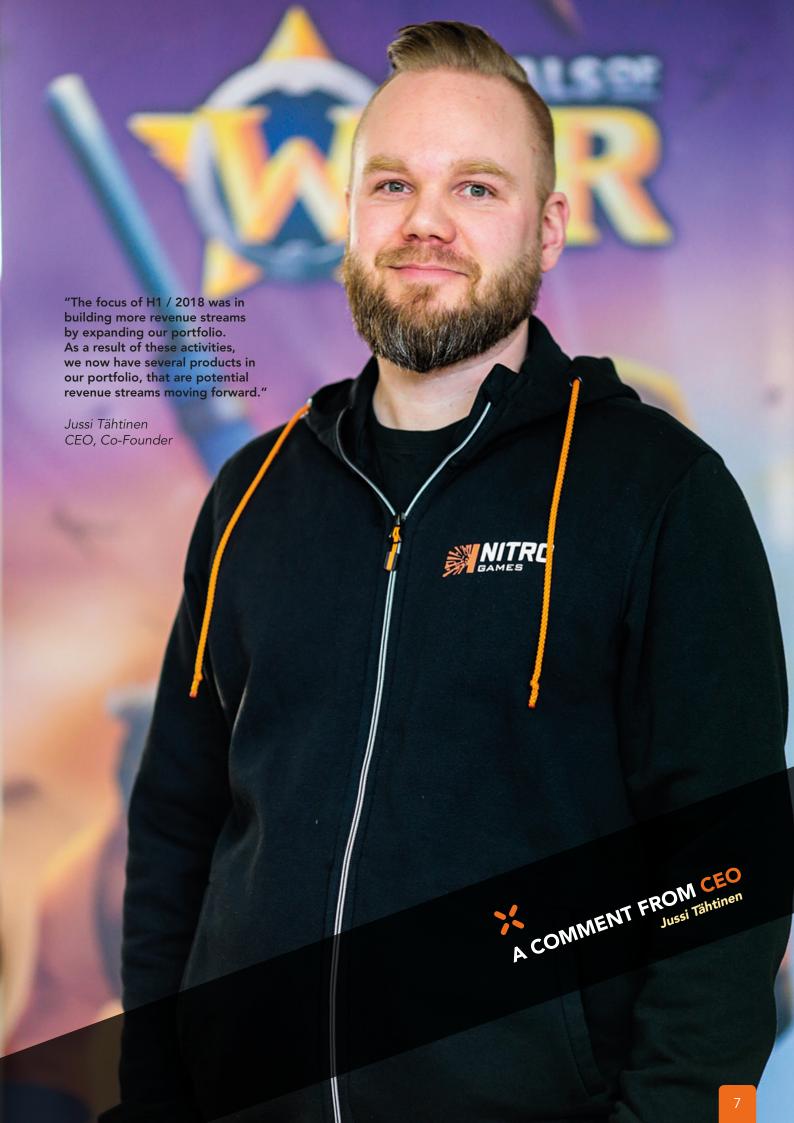

In our Service business we continued our co-operation with Wargaming. We achieved significant milestone here, as we signed a new agreement with them. This new agreement is about Wargaming publishing the game that we've been working on, while our team continues further developing the game and supporting the live operations. The important achievement with this new agreement is that it contains the potential for scalable revenues in our Service business, since in addition to fees against our services it also contains a profit-sharing component after the commercial launch. Our strategy is about growth, and focus this year is building more revenue streams. This progress goes well in line with our goals and I'm excited to see how things develop further now that the game is in soft launch.

During H1 we've seen an increase in revenues, compared to previous year. This was the first time we exceed one million EUR in revenues during a half year period. The revenues during H1 were 1,05 million EUR, compared to 0,79 million EUR in H1 2017 (34% growth). Overall H1 was about investing in team building and product development, with the goal of building more revenue streams for future. However, worth noting that this means that most of the games we worked on during H1 only resulted in costs, as they're planned for launch after H1 and the revenue generation is expected to start after launch.

Our strategy is about growth, and that's what we're focusing on delivering. During H1 we succeeded in building several new opportunities for growth, resulting in us now having two games in our self-publishing pipeline and two games that we work on with Netmarble and Wargaming. I'm excited to see how we monetize these opportunities during H2 and beyond.

Medals of War launched in MEA region by Netmarble EMEA. The game is now available in MEA region on Android and iOS distributed by Netmarble EMEA, the regional office of Netmarble Games, one of the fastest growing mobile gaming companies in the world today. This launch follows Nitro Games' strategy where the company is self-publishing it's games in the western markets and accessing other markets via publishing partners. Before this launch, the game has been available on selected test markets in the MEA region and optimized based on the data and feedback collected from players. Medals of War is available with different localized names in the MEA region.

MEA version of Medals of War received featuring after launch. The game got featured in 13 countries in MEA region in Google Play Store, including key markets such as Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates and Turkey.

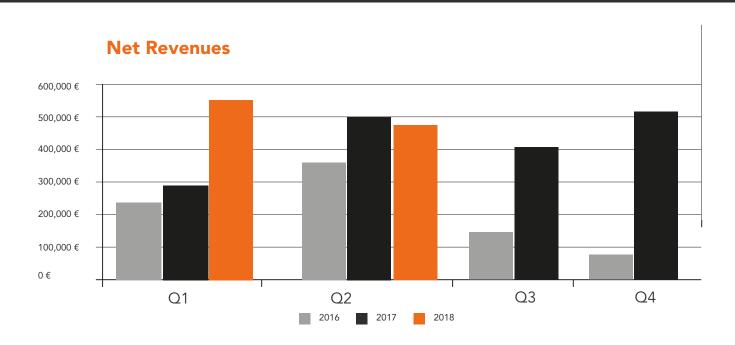

Heroes of Warland public soft launch started in 7 countries on Google Play and iOS. The purpose of this soft launch is to validate the game performance on selected markets while the team is finalizing the game and adding in new content. The game is now available on Android devices in Google Play Store and on iPhone & iPad in Apple iTunes AppStore, in Philippines, Ireland, Poland, Australia, New Zealand, Finland and Canada. The commercial hard launch is targeted for 2018 after the soft launch.

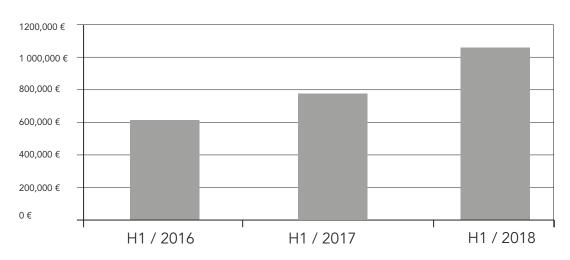

Revenues & Profit / Loss

Revenues during the interim period January – June 2018 were 1,051,660.95 EUR (corresponding period 2017: 787,918.35 EUR), which is an increase of 34% compared to the corresponding period 2017. The Revenues came mainly from the service business as the company focused on the co-operation with Wargaming, and preparation of new game launches. The decrease in Revenues during April-June compared to January-March is a result of schedule of invoicing in the service business between previous and new agreement with Wargaming, as well as decreased spending in Medals of War user acquisition, while the focus was in improving the performance and preparing the MEA version launch. The launch of Medals of War in MEA region by Netmarble EMEA happened after the interim period in July. Heroes of Warland entered public soft-launch in July and is targeted for commercial hard launch in 2018.

The net result for the period amounted to -2,476,091.45 EUR (-1,096,346.03 EUR). The Company invested in new product development and upcoming launch preparations, which occurs as costs during the interim period.

Medals of War Performance Metrics

First self-published game Medals of War was launched in September 2017, after initial market tests.

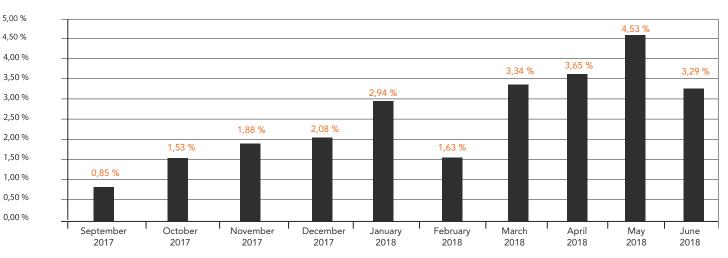

The development of the game's performance is measured with several metrics.

- The Monetization of the game is measured with ARPU (Average Revenue Per User) and ARPDAU (Average Revenue Per Daily Active User). ARPU is used to measure how much revenue can be expected from each player over a period of 30 days and ARPDAU is used to measure how any changes made in the game, e.g. engagement campaigns, are affecting the monetization performance.
- The amount of players who are paying customers is measured with Conversion %. This metric describes what percentage of monthly new players make purchases in the game over a period of 1 month.
